Consistently ranked among the best hotels in the world, the Victorian-style Ocean House makes a big impression, perched on a bluff over the Atlantic Ocean on Rhode Island's most southwestern point. The 13-acre property was built in 1868, and underwent $146 million in renovations in 2010. "It's right on the Atlantic in the charmingly low-key beach town of Watch Hill — notwithstanding the fact that the neighbors include Taylor Swift," says Rhode Island-based travel writer Robert Curley. Strolling the sand and turns on the historic Flying Horse Carousel (America's oldest) are favorite pastimes. And the hotel has Rhode Island's top spa and the renowned restaurant Seasons.
